The cast of National Public Radio’s popular vocabulary quiz show will kick-off their nationwide tour with two show tapings at Saint Joseph College. Created and hosted by Richard Sher, Says You! is “a game of words and whimsy, bluff and bluster.” The panelists are divided into two, three-person teams and compete in a variety of contests which increase in difficulty as the rounds progress. Panelists will participate in word games, brain teasers, trivia games and the always-popular bluffing rounds in which panelists must discern actual definitions from made-up answers!

The New York Times describes the show as “hyper literate but not smug . . . Says You! keeps the quiz show tradition alive.” So brush up on your vocabulary and test your wits against NPR’s esteemed panelists!

Saint Joseph College, founded in 1932 by the Sisters of Mercy to provide higher education opportunities for women, is a comprehensive institution serving women from diverse backgrounds and religious traditions. More than 22 majors and six pre-professional programs are available plus accelerated bachelor’s to master’s degrees. Responsive to the evolving educational needs of the community, the School of Graduate and Professional Studies offers both women and men graduate degree programs including: management, counseling, education, and nursing along with online programs in biology, biochemistry and nutrition. In addition, the undergraduate Weekend Program for Adult Learners, professional certificate programs relevant to today’s workforce and other continuing co-educational learning opportunities are available. In the fall of 2011, the Saint Joseph College School of Pharmacy, the first doctoral program in the College's 79-year history, welcomes its first class to Hartford 21 on Trumbull Street in downtown Hartford. View our Web site at www.sjc.edu.
